Because Hills has an earnest desire to cooperate with the Commissioners and Hills sincerely vants to protect its sales-people. It is certainly not because of a dissenting group of selfish interests who have been using an unjust law as a tool in an effort to insure their own profits.

Because this group is afraid of open competition, they want to use a legal mechanism to deter or prevent competition. Yet these very same people are violating the Sunday closing law themselves. Hills asks, "Why haven't these other businesses been asked to close on Sundays?"

If the closing law is enforced against Hills only, it is certainly an unjust law and it should be changed. It's not the fact that they are hurting Hills. Rather, they are hurting families that have no other time to shop together, Because Hills invites open competition rather than an unfair method to injure a competing business. Hills invites comparison shopping - and why not - Hills prices are consistently lower, their selections are always larger and Hills always guarantees better quality. Why should they use such means as they do unless they want to force the public to pay THEIR higher prices.

Because Hills and its employees are a part of East Liverpool, and as such, do not want to create a disturbance in the community. On the other hand, Hills wants to honestly serve the one-car families of this area; those who must work six days a week, and those who have no better shopping opportunities.

This Would Be Too Easy!

Many auto accident reports now include the statement that seat belts were not in use, though the vehicles had been equipped with these safety devices.

Every auto-safety expert agrees that habitual use of seat belts would minimize the kind of accident in which the driver and passengers are thrown bodily from a car at the moment of impact with another car, or with some stationary object. Yet, the conditioned reflex of fastening seat belts before the car starts is almost as rare among passengers as it was years back shen the first seat belts were installed. Auto manufacturers now are furnishing belts for rearseat passengers as well as front-seat passengers. But how many rear-seat passengers will make a habit of fastening the belts that have been installed for their safety?

Two possibilities suggest themselves.

First, a warning light on the dashboard like the light that tells the driver the parking brake has not been released. It wouldn't quit flashing until all seat belts had been fastened. A few cars already have this equipment.

Second, an automatic cutout switch that would make it impossible to start the car until the seat belts had been fastened. The switch would be tamper proof for the driver, fully automatic for a front-seat passenger unless released by the driver and optional for the back

Naturally, this would have to be optional equipment. But it could become the kind of optional equipment that comes already installed, particularly if insurance companies gave preferential rates to owners using it and special bonuses to drivers using it when involved in

Parade Thoughts

With more topnotch bands than ever in the line of march more widely representative of the district than previously, Friday night's annual Christmas parade can be termed the best yet. Things moved on schedule-essential to any such event-and the units that filled in between the bands were of a high caliber over all. Even the weatherman cooperated, with the rain holding off during the hour-long event. Ironic as it might seem, the one major note of criticism, in our opinion, could be aimed in the direction of the revered and honored guest-Santa Claus himself.

The presentation of the merry old gentleman was not nearly as inspiring as it should have been. Santa deserves a far more majestic float to bring the parade to a fitting climax. The kids are there to see Santa-and they should see him at his best.

Short Of Unconditional Surrender

There is always the danger that non-Americans who do not understand the right to hold contrary opinions will exaggerate murmurs of dissent into uproars of disapproval.

This is happening in disagreement with the Johnson administration's current war-hawk pollcy in Viet Nam.

Every sound of disagreement is being amplified in anti-American circles abroad. This is especially true in authoritarian circles, always alert to what looks to authoritarians like popular sovereignty is breaking up.

But the danger of exaggerating dissent in authoritarian circles is matched by the danger of minimizing dissent in the United States, itself. There is a happy-go-lucky notion among the American people that everything always turns out all right in a military showdown and Americans invariably stand shoulder to shoulder because they always have rallied to calls of patriotism in the past.

On one occasion, the rally psychology failed to crystallize.

By 1952, the American people were fed to the teeth with the Korean War, which had been grinding on since 1950, including a massive intervention of Chinese troops that had inflicted a costly face-losing retreat When it became plain that the United States could not afford to leave South Korea, which was a strategic military base in Asia, and was not going to be able to secure the base against Chinese control without digging in for an indefinite stay, turning Korea into a garrison state, Dwight D. Eisenhower made a Korean truce a key point in his campaign for the President Johnson will be no less sensitive to the first murmurings of war weariness than Dwight Eisenhower and his political advisers proved to be in 1952, when they promised to stop bloodshed in Korea, or in 1953, when they opened negotiations for a truce.

South Viet Nam, too, is a vital base that cannot be abandoned but may have to be secured eventually by negotiations, instead of the enemy's unconditional surrender

W. C. Marland

One could have only respect for William C. Marland, the former governor of West Virginia who succumbed to cancer Friday.

Such respect was engendered by a courageous comeback against tremendous odds in the face of an alcoholic problem which would have engulfed others not blessed with the innate qualities which Mr. Marland possessed.

While a comparative newcomer to the district, he won many friends through the manner in which he conducted himself during the time he served as an executive in the varied enterprises of James F. Edwards, owner of Waterford Park race track.

With Mr. Marland just coming into his own again after an earlier brilliant career, his death truly was untimely

Air Power Over Viet Nam

The nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise will join other units of the U. S. 7th fleet in waters off Viet Nam. Its presence will beef up still more the absolute monopoly the United States holds in the air over the beleaguered country.

Carrier-launched planes fly around-the-clock raids on targets and are supplemented by heavy bombers flown in from distant Pacific bases. Helicopters based in South Viet Nam plus light fighter planes and specially equipped heavy planes with super gunpower strafe ground troops, which have no means and no hope of retaliation, other than antiaircraft

This lopsided advantage in the one presumably indispensable modern armament should more than offset the Viet Cong advantages being stressed by war correspondents, such as pointed sticks and booby traps to kill U.S. troops and their allies and the savagery of their attacks on unsuspecting battle parties.

Incessant stress on what is being done with U.S. air superiority at the expense of a foe with no air power whatsoever is raising anew a question that still was never answered in World War II and the Korean War:

If air power is the decisive element in modern warfare, why doesn't it prove decisive?

Pending the answer to that question, Americans only can be thankful their fighting forces are not up against a foe capable of challenging U.S. domination of the air space over Viet Nam. In that event, the war might go forever.

Shaking Off Type Lice

An itchy-footed associate has been showing me color slides of a house in Miami, Fla., he expects to live in when he shakes the type lice out of his life and retires.

I have done all the ooh-ing and ah-ing expected of me under the circumstances. I have been vocally impressed with the house, the landscaping and the general idea of life in a warm climate. But down underneath, the proposition leaves me cold.

I have no slides to show, but what I intend to do when it's time for type delousing is live all over North America. I intend to live on the shores of Hudson Bay, the banks of the Rio Grande, the Atlantic and Pacific seacoast, in orange groves, apple orchards, pine forests, wheat fields, Kentucky horse farms, snow fields, cattle ranches, rodeo sites, cotton plantations -you name it.

This will be done by means of equipment that has come to my attention-a house bus. Or, if you prefer, a self-propelled house on wheels.

This is similar to the mobile houses that are pulled behind trucks and autos but has the advantage of self-contained mobility. It does not have to be towed. It moves under its own power.

Obviously, this turns out to be chunk of rolling stock, because it contains everything. The one have in mind will be the size of a giant moving van. It will tow behind it one of those flat-bed carriers with a sports car, for making trips into town and sight-seeing.

All this would be too much for an amateur driver to handle, so the rig will be chauffeured by a professional. Obviously, no man wants to travel alone for years on end, so the driver will have to bring along his wife to help with cooking and housework. Another thing, of course, will be an outrider -the advance man. Someone will have to ride on ahead to pick the right location and make the necessary arrangements. This will add still another member to the entourage.

By Truman Twill

It also may be necessary to take along a man of all work to keep everything shipshape and all the moving parts oiled. And in view of the probability all these things will not come to pass until the sun is sinking to the horizon, a practical nurse who makes a sideline of masseusing would be needed.

What with one thing and another, it will take every penny of old age benefits to keep this show on the road, plus all the banks we can rob, plus whatever we can make from casual sales of Dr. Twill's snake oil and miraculous vegetable compound, plus the change the lady of the bus can pick up tutoring children along the way, plus light hauling, illustrated lectures and washings.

But it will beat living in one house in Florida, with the sun beating down day in and day out until a man's sinuses are too dried out to throb

This 'n That

Probably the freest drinkers in the world are the white population of South Africa, with an average of 1.71 gallons of proof alcohol per annum per capita. The most abstemious are the Belgians, with only 0.25 gallon per capita.

Ducks and geese are among the strongest fliers in the bird kingdom. The average speed of ducks and geese is 40 to 50 miles an hourbut ducks have been clocked flying as high as 65 to 72 miles an hour when being chased.

According to statistics, the average man between 20 and 24 can expect to switch jobs six or seven times - and in many cases the change will be to a totally new career

BIPAC, COPE Battle Looms

By Victor Riesel

On Nov. 16 the President of the U.S. dispatched a promissory note to his good friend, the president of the Auto Workers' Union

It was a "Dear Walter" letter. And it pledged to Reuther the unleashing of a White House drive for the passage of the remaining labor program when the Congress returns from home and hearth.

There was nothing "iffy" about the President's promise to fight for the labor leaders' most prized objectives of the '65 session-repeal of the law which makes it possible for the states to ban the union Victor Riesel

shop; higher and wider minimum wages and longer and steadier unemployment insurance. "Many vital objectives have not been attained," said the President, in the two-page letter after recounting the victories in the recent congressional session. "Amendment of the Fair Labor Standards Acts and the Unemployment Insurance laws is part of the unfinished business of the Congress and the Nation. These must be given high "We have made significant progress in 1965 toward the long-sought goal of repealing Section 14B. Just as we had to come back last year to finish the unfinished battle for Medicare, we will come back in the next session to remove this devisive provision from the law.

THE LETTER closed with greetings to the AFL-CIO Industrial Union Department's annual convention. The President hoped the parley would "prove highly productive and fruitful for the men and women you represent and for the nation you serve so faithfully."

This letter has become a conversation piece among businessmen in the big town. They are realists. They know that power is in votesand that the congressmen whom the businessmen count as friends just don't count up high enough to stop the labor drive up the Hill.

These industrialists-among whom Reuther would not exactly win a most popular personality contest-don't blame him and the other labor leaders for getting the jump on them. They rue it. And they're organizing in an effort to beat him at his own political game.

For some time now this column has been chronicling the life and hard times of their brainchild, the Business-Industry Political Action Committee (BIPAC). It's directed at two modest men in a modest office at 14 W. 49 in a mood which is as rueful as it is hopeful.

In less than two years BIPAC has set up State Businessmen's Political Commisees in 30 states.

ON DEC. 1 the committee chiefs-most of them prominent business executives-will meet for an afternoon in the Waldorf. They'll talk for an hour or so; exchange experiences, discuss expansion into every state during the 1966

They'll attempt to have enough political apparatus to meet labor's Committee on Political Education head on in 103 congressional districts. Most of them have not yet heard of the "Dear Walter" letter. But all of them are fully aware of the successful alliance of labor and liberals and most of the Democratic party.

The industrialists are wasting no time on rancor or recriminations. They're building up a new "sales" front.

"It took COPE 20 years to get it where it is now," said one of the strategists recently. "The trade union boys realized very early what basic power there is in politics. But in general the business people have not yet recognized this, strange as it seems. Or if they've recognized it, they hadn't moved until we began organizing

HOW TO COMPETE with COPE whose unions have 14 million members well organized in nearly every state. BIPAC's directors believe there is ample manpower-and more-on the business side. They reckon that there are five million business establishments in the country and "almost 30 million people in the proprietory, managerial, supervisory, clerical, sales and professional categories." They really have more potential manpower than does labor

How to reach them? BIPAC's tacticians have been urging "the chief executive officer" of each business "to address a personal letter to each of his associates, enclosing BIPAC information and a membership application." They say it

It may take some time before they give labor a run on the political front. But the fight sure is looming.

Odd Facts

The hamburger is said to have come to us via the Baltic countries, natives there originally being fond of red meat, shredded with a dull knife and eaten raw. This delicacy eventually found its way to the German seaport of Hamburg, and those people liked it well enough to immortalize it with their name. However, it was the Americans who sandwiched it in a bun, added various condiments and promoted it into fantastic sales.

The Great Seal of the United States depicts an unfinished pyramid surrounded by two Latin mottos: "Annuit Coeptus," which means "He has favored our undertaking." and "Novus Ordo Seclorum," which means "A new order of the

Latin Cooperation

By David Lawrence

Help Needed Against Reds

Many critics inside and outside of Congress have been pointing a finger of blame at the United States government for failing to consult the Organization of American States before intervening in the Dominican Republic. Not until this week, however, has it been convincingly revealed that any effort in that direction would have been futile. For Latin America today apparently does not fully realize what the Communist threat means to its safety.

Secretary of State Rusk went to Rio de Janeiro a few days ago to attend a meeting of 19 David Lawrence nations of this hemisphere in an attempt to get an agreement on a formula for cooperative action in the event of Communist subversion or interference in the internal affairs of the various countries in Latin America.

This is not a novel position for the United States to take, because it was originally proclaimed by President Monroe that this country would not tolerate the establishment of any foothold in the Americas by powers outside of this hemisphere.

For many decades, of course, the United States has intervened by itself whenever an international crisis arose that demanded the protection of the lives and property of its citizens in other countries. But in recent years, due to the criticism in Latin America, the United States has advocated procedures whereby disturbances could be dealt with by united action.

IT HAS, HOWEVER, been made clear at the same time that, while anxious to get an inter-American peace force organized, the United States could not afford to forsake its neighbors if the principal countries of Central and South America refused to put into effect a Pan-American police operation. The late President Kennedy, immediately after the Bay of Pigs fiasco in Cuba in 1961, declared that "should it ever appear that the inter-American doctrine of non-interference merely conceals or excuses a policy of non-actionif the nations of this hemisphere should fail to meet their commitments against outside Communist penetration-then I want it clearly understood that this government will not hesitate in meeting its primary obligations which are to the security of our nation!

The problem has by no means been solved by the conference just held in Rio de Janeiro. About all the meeting has done is bring out anew the basic differences.

"Anti-Yankee" agitation often gets some popular backing in Latin-American countries. Much sympathy for and appreciation of the United States, however, are expressed privately by prominent citizens and leaders in those same countries. But the moment they speak out they find themselves challenged by radical groups, many of which are directed by Communist agents or sympathizers.

ONE MIGHT ASSUME that, with the success of the Communist apparatus in taking over Cuba, the other Latin-American governments would be impressed with the menace that exists toward them all. But there is no evidence that the Cuban example has been taken to heart, and scarcely a month goes by when there are not, in one Latin-American country or another, disturbances fomented by Communists with an idea of weakening the existing government.

Secretary Rusk urged in vain the members of the Organization of American States-most of whom sent their foreign ministers to the conference at Rio de Janeiro-to recognize the need for common defense against the Communist threat. He made a firm statement in line with President Kennedy's declaration of 1961. The position of the United States today is that intervention to protect the hemisphere against Communism will be taken even if no other nation is willing to participate in a plan of collective defense.

It's well known that economic aid is supposed to continue at least until 1970. More and more efforts are to be made for closer economic cooperation.

AT THE SAME TIME, it should become obvious to the Latin-American countries that the people of the United States are not likely to approve blanket support for all of Latin-America if the Communists begin to play an influential part in the internal affairs of any of the republics to the south of us. The United States is anxious for the countries in the Western Hemisphere to progress and prosper. Certainly the people of the United States expect reciprocity and cooperation.

This Would Be Too Easy!

Many auto accident reports now include the statement that seat belts were not in use, though the vehicles had been equipped with these safety devices.

Every auto-safety expert agrees that habitual use of seat belts would minimize the kind of accident in which the driver and passengers are thrown bodily from a car at the moment of impact with another car, or with some stationary object.

Yet, the conditioned reflex of fastening seat belts before the car starts is almost as rare among passengers as it was years back shen the first seat belts were installed. Auto manufacturers now are furnishing belts for rearseat passengers as well as front-seat passengers. But how many rear-seat passengers will make a habit of fastening the belts that have been installed for their safety?

Two possibilities suggest themselves.

First, a warning light on the dashboard like the light that tells the driver the parking brake has not been released. It wouldn't quit flashing until all seat belts had been fastened. A few cars already have this equipment.

Second, an automatic cutout switch that would make it impossible to start the car until the seat belts had been fastened. The switch would be tamper proof for the driver, fully automatic for a front-seat passenger unless released by the driver and optional for the back

Naturally, this would have to be optional equipment. But it could become the kind of optional equipment that comes already installed, particularly if insurance companies gave preferential rates to owners using it and special bonuses to drivers using it when involved in

Parade Thoughts

With more topnotch bands than ever in the line of march more widely representative of the district than previously, Friday night's annual Christmas parade can be termed the best yet. Things moved on schedule-essential to any such event-and the units that filled in between the bands were of a high caliber over all

Even the weatherman cooperated, with the rain holding off during the hour-long event.

Ironic as it might seem, the one major note of criticism, in our opinion, could be aimed in the direction of the revered and honored guest-Santa Claus himself.

The presentation of the merry old gentleman was not nearly as inspiring as it should have been. Santa deserves a far more majestic float to bring the parade to a fitting climax. The kids are there to see Santa-and they should see him at his best.

Short Of Unconditional Surrender

There is always the danger that non-Americans who do not understand the right to hold contrary opinions will exaggerate murmurs of dissent into uproars of disapproval.

This is happening in disagreement with the Johnson administration's current war-hawk pollcv in Viet Nam

Every sound of disagreement is being amplified in anti-American circles abroad. This is especially true in authoritarian circles, always alert to what looks to authoritarians like popular sovereignty is breaking up.

But the danger of exaggerating dissent in authoritarian circles is matched by the danger of minimizing dissent in the United States, it-

There is a happy-go-lucky notion among the American people that everything always turns out all right in a military showdown and Americans invariably stand shoulder to shoulder because they always have rallied to calls of patriotism in the past.

On one occasion, the rally psychology failed to crystallize.

By 1952, the American people were fed to the teeth with the Korean War, which had been grinding on since 1950, including a massive intervention of Chinese troops that had inflicted a costly face-losing retreat.

When it became plain that the United States could not afford to leave South Korea, which was a strategic military base in Asia, and was not going to be able to secure the base against Chinese control without digging in for an indefinite stay, turning Korea into a garrison state. Dwight D. Eisenhower made a Korean truce a key point in his campaign for the presidency

President Johnson will be no less sensitive to the first murmurings of war weariness than Dwight Eisenhower and his political advisers proved to be in 1952, when they promised to stop bloodshed in Korea, or in 1953, when they opened negotiations for a truce.

South Viet Nam, too, is a vital base that cannot be abandoned but may have to be secured eventually by negotiations, instead of the enemy's unconditional surrender.

W. C. Marland

One could have only respect for William C. Marland, the former governor of West Virginia who succumbed to cancer Friday

Such respect was engendered by a courageous comeback against tremendous odds in the face of an alcoholic problem which would have engulfed others not blessed with the innate qualities which Mr. Marland possessed.

While a comparative newcomer to the district, he won many friends through the manner in which he conducted himself during the time he served as an executive in the varied enterprises of James F. Edwards, owner of Waterford Park race track.

With Mr. Marland just coming into his own again after an earlier brilliant career, his death truly was untimely.

Air Power Over Viet Nam

The nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise will join other units of the U.S. 7th fleet in waters off Viet Nam.

Its presence will beef up still more the absolute monopoly the United States holds in the air over the beleaguered country.

Carrier-launched planes fly around-the-clock raids on targets and are supplemented by heavy bombers flown in from distant Pacific bases. Helicopters based in South Viet Nam plus light fighter planes and specially equipped heavy planes with super gunpower strafe ground troops, which have no means and no hope of retaliation, other than antiaircraft guns This lopsided advantage in the one presumably indispensable modern armament should more than offset the Viet Cong advantages being stressed by war correspondents, such as pointed sticks and booby traps to kill U.S. troops and their allies and the savagery of their attacks on unsuspecting battle parties.

Incessant stress on what is being done with U.S. air superiority at the expense of a foe with no air power whatsoever is raising anew a question that still was never answered in World War II and the Korean War:

If air power is the decisive element in modern warfare, why doesn't it prove decisive?

Pending the answer to that question, Americans only can be thankful their fighting forces are not up against a foe capable of challenging U.S. domination of the air space over Viet Nam.

In that event, the war might go forever.

Shaking Off Type Lice

An itchy-footed associate has been showing me color slides of a house in Miami, Fla., he expects to live in when he shakes the type lice out of his life and retires.

I have done all the ooh-ing and ah-ing expected of me under the circumstances. I have been vocally impressed with the house, the landscaping and the general idea of life in a warm climate. But down underneath, the proposition leaves me cold.

I have no slides to show, but what I intend to do when it's time for type delousing is live all over North America. I intend to live on the shores of Hudson Bay, the banks of the Rio Grande, the Atlantic and Pacific seacoast, in orange groves, apple orchards, pine forests, wheat fields. Kentucky horse farms, snow fields, cattle ranches, rodeo sites, cotton plantations -vou name it

This will be done by means of equipment that has come to my attention-a house bus. Or, if you prefer, a self-propelled house on wheels.

This is similar to the mobile houses that are pulled behind trucks and autos but has the advantage of self-contained mobility. It does not have to be towed. It moves under its own

Obviously, this turns out to be chunk of rolling stock, because it contains everything. The one have in mind will be the size of a giant moving van. It will tow behind it one of those flat-bed carriers with a sports car, for making trips into town and sight-seeing. All this would be too much for an amateur driver to handle, so the rig will be chauffeured by a professional. Obviously, no man wants to travel alone for years on end, so the driver will have to bring along his wife to help with cooking and housework. Another thing, of course, will be an outrider -the advance man. Someone will have to ride on ahead to pick the right location and make the necessary arrangements. This will add still another member to the entourage.

By Truman Twill

It also may be necessary to take along a man of all work to keep everything shipshape and all the moving parts oiled. And in view of the probability all these things will not come to pass until the sun is sinking to the horizon, a practical nurse who makes a sideline of masseusing would be needed.

What with one thing and another, it will take every penny of old age benefits to keep this show on the road, plus all the banks we can rob, plus whatever we can make from casual sales of Dr. Twill's snake oil and miraculous vegetable compound, plus the change the lady of the bus can pick up tutoring children along the way, plus light hauling, illustrated lectures and washings.

But it will beat living in one house in Florida, with the sun beating down day in and day out until a man's sinuses are too dried out to throb any more.

BIPAC, COPE Battle Looms

By Victor Riesel

On Nov. 16 the President of the U.S. dispatched a promissory note to his good friend, the president of the Auto Workers' Union.

It was a "Dear Walter" letter. And it pledged to Reuther the unleashing of a White House drive for the passage of the remaining labor program when the Congress returns from home and hearth. There was nothing "iffy" about the President's promise to fight for the labor leaders' most prized objectives of the '65 session-repeal of the law which makes it possible for the states to ban the union Victor Riesel

shop; higher and wider minimum wages and longer and steadier unemployment insurance. "Many vital objectives have not been attained," said the President, in the two-page

letter after recounting the victories in the recent congressional session. "Amendment of the Fair Labor Standards Acts and the Unemployment Insurance laws is part of the unfinished business of the Congress and the Nation. These must be given high "We have made significant progress in 1965 toward the long-sought goal of repealing Section 14B. Just as we had to come back last year to finish the unfinished battle for Medicar will come back in the next session to remove this devisive provision from the law. THE LETTER closed with greetings to the AFL-CIO Industrial Union Department's annual convention. The President hoped the parley would "prove highly productive and fruitful for the men and women you represent and for the nation you serve so faithfully." This letter has become a conversation piece among businessmen in the big town. They are realists. They know that power is in votes-and that the congressmen whom the businessmen count as friends just don't count up high enough to stop the labor drive up the Hill. These industrialists-among whom Reuther would not exactly win a most popular personality contest-don't blame him and the other labor leaders for getting the jump on them. They rue it. And they're organizing in an effort to beat him at his own political game.

For some time now this column has been chronicling the life and hard times of their brainchild, the Business-Industry Political Action Committee (BIPAC). It's directed at two modest men in a modest office at 14 W. 49 in a mood which is as rueful as it is hopeful. In less than two years BIPAC has set up

They'll attempt to have enough political apparatus to meet labor's Committee on Political Education head on in 103 congressional districts.

Most of them have not yet heard of the "Dear Walter" letter. But all of them are fully aware of the successful alliance of labor and liberals and most of the Democratic party.

The industrialists are wasting no time on rancor or recriminations. They're building up a new "sales" front.

"It took COPE 20 years to get it where it is now," said one of the strategists recently. "The trade union boys realized very early what basic power there is in politics. But in general the business people have not yet recognized this, strange as it seems. Or if they've recognized it, they hadn't moved until we began organizing BIPAC.

HOW TO COMPETE with COPE whose unions have 14 million members well organized in nearly every state. BIPAC's directors believe there is ample manpower-and more-on the business side. They reckon that there are five million business establishments in the country and "almost 30 million people in the proprietory, managerial, supervisory, clerical, sales and professional categories." They really have more potential manpower than does labor

How to reach them? BIPAC's tacticians have been urging "the chief executive officer" of each business "to address a personal letter to each of his associates, enclosing BIPAC information and a membership application." They say it works.

It may take some time before they give labor a run on the political front. But the fight sure is looming.

TRADITIONAL SYMBOLS OF FAITH AND LOVE

THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM is one of our most beautiful Christmas symbols. By tradition it is displayed each year in homes and city squares to honor the Christ Child and the faith He brought to the world. The traditional symbol of our love for dear ones departed is the enduring Monument erected in a traditional Monument cemetery. And, as in the Christmas display of religious symbols, the erection of such a Monument gives form and substance to the expression of our deep and reverent feelings. If your family plot still lacks this traditional tribute, we will gladly assist you in selecting the Monument that will most appropriately bespeak your sentiments at a cost consistent with what you feel you can afford. We invite you to visit our fully stocked showrooms. where you can shop in comfort and privacy, For your convenience, we also carry a complete line of beautifully designed Bronze

Markers. If you live beyond a visit, we will gladly furnish transportation, or home counsel. A simple act of attention now, can transform a barren plot to one of beauty

... ever-whispering to passerby. "An honored name!"

traditional symbols

OF FAITH AND LOVE THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM is one of our most beautiful Christmas symbols. By tradition it is displayed each year in homes and city squares to honor the Christ Child and the faith He brought to the world.

The traditional symbol of our love for dear ones departed is the enduring Monument erected in a traditional Monument cemetery. And, as in the Christmas display of religious symbols, the erection of such a Monument gives form and substance to the expression of our deep and reverent feelings. If your family plot still lacks this traditional tribute, we will gladly assist you in selecting the Monument that will most appropriately bespeak your sentiments at a cost consistent with what you feel you can afford. We invite you to visit our fully stocked showrooms, where you can shop in comfort and privacy, For your convenience, we also carry a complete line of beautifully designed Bronze

Markers. If you live beyond a visit, we will gladly furnish transportation, or home counsel. A simple act of attention now, can transform a barren plot to one of beauty ... ever-whispering to passerby, "An honored name!"

THE United States offers a storeroom of resources which many people fail to tap.

This is the way Rev. Alexander Haines, pastor of the Green Valley Methodist Church of Shippingport and the Georgetown Methodist Church, sees the country in which he has lived for nine years.

Rev. Haines, a convert from Hinduism who was born in Allahabad, India, in 1928, has been tapping the resources of the U.S. since his arrival in

He is in the U.S. on a student visa and has received a bachelor of science Degree at Asbury College at Wilmore, Ky., a master degree at the Univrsity of Kentucky at Lexington, and is currently working on a doctorate at the University of Pittsburgh. He arrived for a six month tour in 1956 with the Centenary Methodist Choir.

REV. HAINES WAS born Sikander Tiwari, son of Amernatis and Chanderi Tiwari. He and his mother were disowned by his father when they declared themselves Christians, breaking away from family tradition.

He was baptized Alexander Haines in 1939 after living with his mother among the Christians for about four years.

His reason for conversion? "I came to know sin and that Jesus Christ was the only one who can forgive sin. I believed in Christ and knew that I had to belong to Him in order to have peace of soul.

Rev. Haines' early Christian education came through the Episcopalian Church as he traveled to the missions in various cities to attend Bible school. He received his grade school, high school and freshman year of college education in Episcopalian schools. In 1951 he entered the Oriental Missionary Society in Allahabad to train for church work in India.

He joined the Methodist Church in 1953.

Rev. Haines learned about the Hindu faith from friends, and describes it as a philosophical and traditional religion.

"The Hindu is born into a family that follows a regular pattern that has been established over the years. He is not educated through scriptures, but accepts the faith through practice. A Hindu worships many gods and idols and believes firmly in the transmigration of souls after death. He follows the faith of his forefathers without question.

Rev. Haines says he still holds a great love for his mother country, but has grown fond of the United States. Before being assigned to his parishes in Shippingport and Georgetown. he worked as a missionary in this country. He has traveled in 33 states and has lived in over 400 homes.

A personable man with a free and easy manner of speech, Rev. Haines enjoys expressing his changing impressions of

"When I first came to this country, I thought it was a rich country where the majority of people were wealthy, educated, trustworthy, friendly and well cultured. Because of all the wonderful material things the people owned in comparison with those of India, I thought life here was problem free. said Rev. Haines.

NINE YEARS OF living with all types of people, ranging from the very poor to the very rich, has changed Rev. Haines' outlook on the U.S. exceedingly.

"In spite of the wealth of opportunity provided by the resources of education, freedoms of religion and speech and the economical advantages, the people of America must wage a constant struggle to overcome their daily problems. Many create their own problems by not taking advantage of the opportunities available." he said.

"I have learned to base my opinions about the people on their relationship with their fellow man, rather than on the material goods they own. Like many foreigners entering America, I was awed by the material wealth and judged the happiness of the people on the rich things I saw." Rev. Haines explained.

In his missionary work in the U.S., the minister has worked in slum districts of the big cities, has served with the mountain people of West Virginia and Kentucky, has addressed audiences in high schools, clubs and colleges, and has associated with fellow students from all walks of life.

"I FIND THE basic need of human nature is the same every place. Nobody is free from problems." he said.

Rev. Haines enjoys his present post, "because the people have accepted me for the job I am doing. I know as long as I do the job, I will be accepted.

Would he like to go back to India?

To this question, Rev. Haines answers, "India is my home. Naturally I hope to return someday. However, my work is teaching the faith of Christ-through the Church. Wherever the need for me is the greatest, I want to be.'

Want to know the secret for getting a trophy deer? Just take along a book to read

That's what Atty. James Jordan of Chester did on the first day of West Virginia's deer season Monday and by 9:30 a. m. he had a 200-pound, 10-point buck

Jim says this is one of the largest deer ever taken in West Virginia, where the deer run small as in Pennsylvania

Deer in Ohio generally are larger than those in our two neighboring states. It is believed this is the result of milder winters, and the smaller population of the animals, which means more feed for each.

Jim was in Pendleton County on the Virginia border with a party of 15 from the Chester area. Five of them got deer and returned home while the others stayed.

This is Jim's third deer. He shot bucks in 1963 and 1962. Jim says he doesn't try to go hunting early in the morning at daybreak. He waits until later in the morning and then goes to a stand. He takes along a book to read to pass the time.

Jim says this buck came within 80 yards of him and was with a white doe. He shot it with a 30.06 rifle.

THE BIG GUNS WILL begin booming in Pennsylvania Monday, opening of the 1965 deer season. The magic hour is 7 a.m. The Pennsylvania Game Commission predicts another fine harvest. The 1964 season produced the second highest buck take on record, with a total of 49,231 shot. Surveys set the buck population in excess of 86,500. With favorable hunting conditions, the antlered deer kill this season should be between 42,500 and 49,000. The two-week season ends Dec. 11, followed by a two-day antlerless season.

Hunters are permitted to take one deer only in any or all of the three separate Pennsylvania deer seasons-archery, antlered and antlerless

To be a legal target during the antlered season, a buck must have a rack with two or more points to one antler or have spikes at least three inches long.

A duplicate of the roster must be posted at the headquarters of the grown It must list the names, addresses, license num bers, make and caliber of firearms for each member. As a kill is made, this must be entered on the roster.

Not more than 25 persons are permitted to hunt deer in a single party.

Deer must be tagged within one hour of killing and before it can be moved from the spot where it was killed. A special antlerless license is needed to hunt does.

A TOTAL OF 325 BUCKS were harvested in Ohio's deer season in the South Deer Zone. The season closed Nov. 11. There were eight killed in Jefferson County and five in Carroll County. No deer were taken in Columbiana County MINK AND MUSKRAT trapping season, already open in Ohio and West Virginia, started Thursday in Pennsylvania. All traps must be tagged with a metal plate, giving the name and address of the owner, no matter which state.

The diet of the muskrat consists of water weeds and roots with an occasional clam thrown in.

In the marsh regions of Ohio around Sandusky, the residents have changed the name of this animal to "marsh rabbit" and they are sold in meat markets for as much as a dollar a pound.

Maybe its the association with the name, but most people wrinkle up their noses and make a face when anyone suggests eating muskrat. I've never eaten them, but have been told they are good.

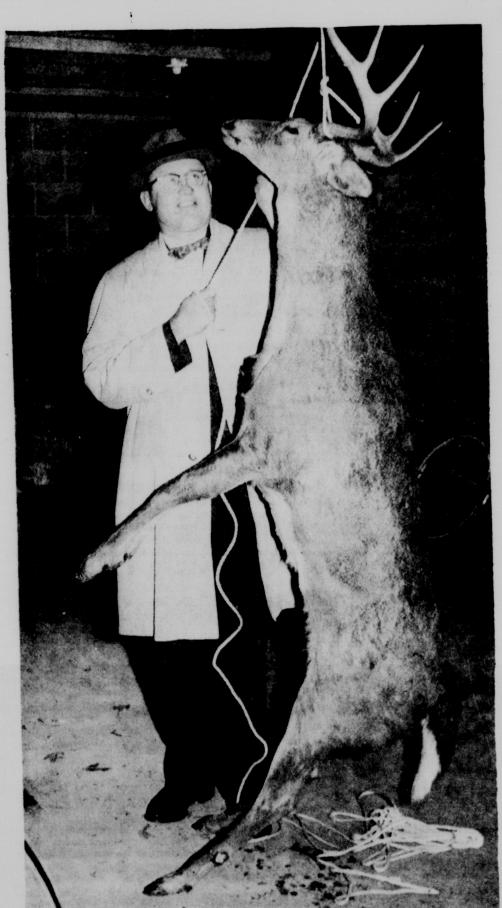

In case you're interested and do trap some this year, here is a recipe for cooking them

Spiced Muskrat' Take the hind legs from six nice, freshly killed muskrats and clean all the fat from them. Boil in water for 45 minutes with salt and pepper. Remove from the pot.

Melt a generous amount of butter in a large skillet. Cook a sliced medium-sized onion in the butter until half done. Rub nutmeg into the legs. Place in the butter and brown well. Put in a cup of cooked celery. Mixed well. Salt and pepper to taste and serve.

Sounds delicious.

THE THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPER

A CONTRACTOR OF THE PROPERTY O

One sound idea emerged from the misty mind of Adolf Hitler in the years he ruled Nazi Germany. The evidence is scuttling over America's streets and highways in numbers that grow daily.

It's the Volkswagen, translated "People's Car," but not one person in ten thousand owners of the little bug realizes it is the brain child of Der

Perhaps it was all intended as a massive swindle of the working class. At any rate, that's what it amounted to in the end. Because not one German ever took delivery of a Volkswagon under Hitler's regime, although they were paid for by the thousands in a sort of reverse installment plan.

The Nazi ruler decreed that the workers would pay first, then get the car!

IN THE PALMY DAYS before the outbreak of World War II, Hitler decided that every German, or every German worker, at least, should own his own car. At the time, there was one auto for every 50 Germans, while the U.S. boasted of a ration of one car to every five Americans.

In the peculiar way of dictators, Hitler decreed that Nazi Germany would build a car that would sell for just 990 Marks -$396 in American money at the then current rate of exchange. He fixed the price before the car had been designed or a factory had been built to assemble it.

Dr. Ferdinand Porsche, an Austrian auto engineer whose name has been immortalized in his own product, took charge of the crew that designed the bug.

Hitler soon learned that private industry could not build an auto for $396, even in his slave labor state. So he decreed that the State would build the car, with the Labor Front in charge. The Labor Front was the country's largest single party organization, swollen with bureaucrats.

The Labor Front actually built a plant, calling it the "largest automobile factory in the world," and said it would turn out 1.5 million Volkswagons annually.

MEANWHILE, WORKERS throughout Germany were kicking in anywhere from 5 to 15 marks a week on the promise

But no worker ever collected a car during the life of the Third Reich. When the war broke out, the auto factory was converted to production of Army material.

Perhaps it was all intended as a massive swindle of the working class. At any rate, that's what it amounted to in the end. Because not one German ever took delivery of a Volkswagon under Hitler's regime, although they were paid for by the thousands in a sort of reverse installment plan.

The Nazi ruler decreed that the workers would pay first,

IN THE PALMY DAYS before the outbreak of World War II. Hitler decided that every German, or every German worker, at least, should own his own car. At the time, there was one auto for every 50 Germans, while the U.S. boasted of a ration of one car to every five Americans.

In the peculiar way of dictators, Hitler decreed that Nazi Germany would build a car that would sell for just 990 Marks -$396 in American money at the then current rate of exchange. He fixed the price before the car had been designed or a factory had been built to assemble it.

Dr. Ferdinand Porsche, an Austrian auto engineer whose name has been immortalized in his own product, took charge of the crew that designed the bug.

close-but-no-cigar football season tonight with a bowl appearance against a team looking for a place in the Sun.

The Fighting Irish, whose national championship hopes were dashed last Saturday by mighty Michigan State, visit the Orange Bowl and suddenly-ambitious Miami

Three games next Saturday -UCLA-Tennessee, Penn State-Maryland and Oklahoma State-Oklahoma - complete the regular schedule. Then the holiday bowl attractions take over.

Miami, which dropped four of its first six starts, has bounced back with three straight victories and is one of several schools being considered for the remaining berth in the Sun Bowl. The Hurricanes, who spilled Sugar Bowl-bound Florida 16-13 last week, could get the bid with a solid performance against sixth-ranked Notre

The Irish, however, are twotouchdown favorites to pick up their strong ground game after the Michigan State debacle and finish with an 8-2 season mark. Bill Wolski, Nick Eddy and Larry Conjar, stopped cold by the Spartans' huge forward wall, figure to find more running room against Miami.

Sophomore quarterback Bill Miller, whose next touchdown pass will equal the school season record of 10 held by George Mira, and rugged linebacker Ed Weisacosky pace the Hurri-canes. ## A Junior Editors Quiz About-AULD LANG SYNE

QUESTION: What is meant by "auld lang syne" and who wrote those words?

* * * ANSWER: We all know the famous song starting: "Should auld acquaintence be forgot," which we often sing at New Year's parties. "Auld lang syne" almost sounds as if it was about some old person named Lang Syne. The song was written by the Scotsman Robert Burns in 1788. Burns was born of very poor parents and had a difficult time as a boy. Yet sorrow and sickness seemed to make him sympathic with all kinds of people, and when he began to write poetry, his humanity and honest sentiment made him famous at once. Burns seemed to speak for the soul of the Scottish people. The Scotch had developed a somewhat different language from the English. In the Scotch lowlands, for instance, they said "wee" for the English "small" and "bonnie" for "pretty." Burns wrote many poems in regular English, but he loved the way the Scots spoke and used this for some of his finest poetry. So he spoke of auld lang syne in Scotch words, meaning old long since, or days gone by. We all remember some "auld acquaintance" whose company we once enjoyed and who now lives somewhere else, for few of us really forget the "days of auld lang syne.'

FOR YOU TO DO: Think kindly of your "auld acquaintances," but do something even better; make a list of them with a note to send Christmas cards. This is a fine way to keep your auld friendships alive.

Gary Lord of Des Plaines, Ill., wins today's combined prize of Compton's Illustrated Science Dictionary plus $10 cash for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review.
